

Naumi Hotel Auckland Airport Celebrates Earth Hour 2026 with Candlelight Dinner at Restaurant Lunar & Bar

This Earth Hour, Naumi Hotel Auckland Airport is turning sustainability into an experience worth savouring. On Saturday, 28th March 2026, Restaurant Lunar & Bar is hosting a candlelight dinner built around three things we genuinely care about: sustainable food, local art, and community impact.

What the evening looks like

From 7pm, guests sit down to a three-course set menu at NZD 79 per person. The menu is a collaboration between Chef Royce Bold of Rescued Kitchen and our own Chef Rodney Gomes, built around rescued ingredients that turn food waste reduction into fine dining. At a moment during the evening, the lights go out for one hour as we join Earth Hour's global moment, dining by candlelight alongside millions around the world.

The partnerships behind the evening

At the heart of this evening are two Auckland organisations whose values align closely with our own. Rescued Kitchen, led by Chef Royce Bold, transforms surplus and imperfect produce into exceptional food, tackling food waste not through compromise, but through creativity. Waitākere Arts connects us with talented local artists whose work is displayed throughout the hotel for this event, bringing eco-conscious, sustainable art off the studio walls and into the spaces where our guests eat, gather, and connect. Seeing their work by candlelight makes for something genuinely special. With NZD 20 from every ticket donated directly to Waitākere Arts, every guest plays a part in funding these artists and the community initiatives they are part of.

Why this matters to us

Sustainability has always been part of how we run Naumi Hotel Auckland Airport, from the partners we work with to the experiences we offer our guests. The Earth Hour Candlelight Dinner is a natural extension of that, and an opportunity to bring our community together around something we all care about.
